

Mag. Michael Stadlober

MICHAEL STADLOBER is managing partner of the consultancy company "mocca organisationsberatung". He works as trainer and consultant, mainly in the areas of organizational development in public-sector organizations and non-profit organizations. He has facilitated change processes in a variety of organizations and branches in Austria and Germany. Michael Stadlober is member of NPOol – consultancy network for nonprofit organizations.

As a researcher, till the beginning of 2009 he has worked as scientific assistant at the iff department Organizational Development and Group Dynamics, being responsible for overseeing research projects and publications. His main areas of interests are organizational change processes in the field of public goods as well as collaborations and networks as new and demanding forms of organizing public goods. He is currently finishing his PHD-Thesis on "How to organize change – Outsourcing in public management".